PROGRESSIVES WILL SUPPORT TAFT

And Will do What They can to Elect Him.

Roosevelt Will Also Give His Support to Taft in 1912.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Published stories of an interchange of political and legislative endorsing letters between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt have been exaggerated. There is no strong bond of union to-day between the present President and his predecessor, and it is not likely that such bond will be cemented in the near future.

Recently it was told how Collector Loeb, of New York had been formally requested to look out for the President's future interests in New York State, and it was also said that the collector would have the Colonel's approval in case he chose to accept. In 1912 Mr. Roosevelt will give Mr. Taft his support, but as it was said in the dispatch touching the interchange between Mr. Taft and Mr. Loeb the support is not at all likely to be full-hearted.

There are men who know definitely just what the attitude of Mr. Roosevelt, toward the present administration is, and there are men, also who know that the present attitude, unless cataclysmic changes come, will be maintained in the future.

The President is unquestionably counting on Mr. Roosevelt's support, and he is going to get it, and it will be an active support, but not fully sympathetic. This means simply that while he will work for Mr. Taft's election the Colonel would prefer that the work was to be done for someone against whom the Progressives never had made charge of a willingness to tamper with reaction. Other Progressive leaders with Col. Roosevelt will support President Taft for re-nomination. The full-heartedness with which they will undertake the task of support can best be judged by what they have said of the President within the last few years. With the Progressive leaders, Roosevelt and all the others the feeling is that the administration recently has shown progressive tendencies which they hold it ought to have shown from the first.

The Progressives are going to support the President and do what they can to elect him and with never a word of the past, but it would not be difficult to get from them an admission that the past is not easily forgotten.

This submitted outline of the situation is truthfully drawn, for the men who have made it are probably truthful men. Certainly no one thus far has made any strong effort to confer upon them membership in the club whose motto is mendacity. The outline is given with no attempt to reason as to the rights and wrongs of the opinions of Mr. Taft's conduct in office which the Progressives have held. They say that Mr. Taft is unquestionably will be re-nominated for the Presidency, that they are ready to support him, and that they think the President is much more of a Progressive than any of the Democrats most prominently mentioned as candidates for the Presidential nomination.

If no disappointment had come to the Progressive leaders following tariff legislation and certain other legislation in its first recommended form of course there could be no question as to the loyalty which Roosevelt, Cummins and the rest would come to the support of the President in the next campaign.

As it is, they will bring more sympathy and strength to the President's standard in the next contest, even with memories keen for what they call Mr. Taft's dereliction, because of the seeming certainty that Mr. Harmon, of Ohio is to be the next candidate of the opposition. For Harmon the Progressive Republicans have about as much love as they have for Nelson W. Aldrich. They say frankly that if the Ohio Governor is nominated Mr. Taft safely can make arrangements to stay four years more in the White House.

It was Frank L. Dingley, editor of the Lewiston, Me. Journal whose influence unquestionably was responsible for Eugene Hale's withdrawal from the Senatorial contest. Mr. Dingley is one of the ablest Progressive Republicans in the United States. He is a warm personal friend of Theodore Roosevelt. In an editorial in the Lewiston Journal, written by Mr. Dingley this has just appeared:

"It is perfectly credible that Roosevelt will stand for Taft in 1912 as Taft in 1910 stands for the redemption of his neglected pledge of 1908 and for faithfulness to the Planchet as distinguished from the Baltimore policy. As Taft's blunders brought on the landslide—Ohio being in particular evidence—his correction of himself will do much to correct the party misled by Aldrich and tolerated with inexplicable blindness to the New Nation alism, from now on Taft surely will have Roosevelt's support in 1912."

In his editorial Mr. Dingley might have included with Theodore Roosevelt the Western Progressive leaders. It is probable what he is writing about and there are men who believe that if the quoted editorial extract had been written by Theodore Roosevelt it would have been published in precisely the same spirit, with some changes of letter to make it a little less personal to the writer.

TWO DAYS SESSION OF A. S. OF E. UNION

Convened Here Friday and Saturday and Transacted Much Business—Interest Taken.

The meeting of the Ohio County Union of the American Society of Equity convened at the Court House last Friday and Saturday. The meeting was called to order by President S. L. Stevens, of Beaver Dam. In the absence of Secretary C. E. Smith Mr. F. L. Felix, assistant secretary attended to the secretary's duties. A committee on Resolutions was appointed, and while they were deliberating the meeting was addressed by Rev. Worth Wade. Rev. Wade's remarks were enjoyed, and he urged the members not to cease their work, but to keep everlastingly at it, and made some timely remarks concerning the locals that have dropped into inactivity.

Saturday morning in response to a call from the delegates, President S. L. Stevens made an exhaustive report of the proceedings of the meeting of the National Union of American Society of Equity. After the routine work of the convention had been completed Saturday morning the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

S. L. Stevens, President; L. B. Timmer, Vice President; H. M. Pitt, Secretary; T. E. Tanner, Assistant Secretary; D. Ford, Treasurer. The stock committee, composed of former members L. B. Tichenor, S. L. Stevens and John M. Shultz, were rejected. On Motion S. L. Stevens and Rev. T. H. Balmann were unanimously elected as delegates-at-large and H. T. Porter, E. W. Jackson and L. B. Tichenor as delegates to the State Convention at Bowling Green, Ind. in session. On motion a vote of thanks was extended to Secretary and Assistant Secretary for their work in the past.

Prof. T. H. Smith, of Hartford College, being called upon responded in a 30-minute speech, very interestingly entertaining the delegates along the line of the organization at the conclusion of which a meeting went into executive session. At the close of the session an adjournment was taken to a special session of the County Union called for the first Saturday in next March.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 10.—The prosecution against Morton H. Rogers in the murder of J. U. Laswell, which occurred at Russellville on last Sunday morning, will be called for an examining trial before the county judge on Wednesday. Commonwealth's Attorney Ben D. Ringo of this city has been employed by the relatives of Mr. Laswell to assist in the prosecution and he left for Russellville on the 3:50 P. M. and N. train this afternoon.

Height Record Smashed Again When Hoxsey Went Up 11,474 Feet

Flying records do not last long these days, and it is not likely that Arch Hoxsey's great feat of ascending to a height of 11,474 feet at Los Angeles on Dec. 26 will long remain a world's record. Hoxsey went up when a wind was blowing at forty miles an hour, and several other aviators refused to attempt a flight. He at once began climbing and was soon lost to sight. For more than an hour the spectators on the aviation field saw nothing of the daring aviator. Then he again came into view and swooped down in great spirals until he landed near where he had started. He was so numb he could not move and could hardly speak. He said he had encountered frightful cold and he feared that his carburetor would freeze. The record for height has been broken several times during the present year, as the following figures show: Louis Paulhan Jan. 12, Los Angeles, 4,448 feet; Walter Brookings, July 9, Atlantic City, 6,175 feet; J. Armstrong Drexel, Aug. 11, Lanark, Scotland, 6,750 feet; Drexel, Oct. 24, Belmont park, New York, 7,105 feet; Ralph Johnson, Oct. 25, Belmont park, 7,303 feet; Leon Morane Sept. 3, France, 8,472 feet; George Chavez, Sept. 10, France, 8,792 feet; Henri Wynmalen, Oct. 2, Mourmelon, France, 9,186 feet; Johnstone, Oct. 31, Belmont park, 9,714 feet; Drexel, Nov. 23, Philadelphia, 9,970 feet (record not allowed); M. G. Legagneux, Dec. 9, Pau, France, 10,499 feet; Hoxsey, Dec. 26, Los Angeles, 11,474 feet.

ADDS $45,000,000 TO PENSION ROLL

House Passes Sulloway Bill to Pay all Civil War Veterans.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The House of Representatives to-day passed the Sulloway general pension bill which grants pensions ranging from $12 to $30 a month to all soldiers who served ninety days in the United States army in the Civil War or sixty days in the Mexican War and who have reached the age of sixty-two years. The bill adds about $45,000,000 a year to the pension roll.

There were comparatively few members who were not anxious for an opportunity to pay tribute to the old soldier. The few who announced that they were going to oppose the measure were equally anxious for an opportunity to explain why they were doing so. Speaker Cannon himself took the floor at the close of the debate and made an earnest plea for the passage of the bill. The bill was passed by 212 to 62.

Opposition to the measure was expressed by some members on the ground that its terms were too general. It provides for the pensioning of all Union soldiers regardless of disability, the only requirement being that they shall have attained the age of sixty-two years.

The general scale of pensions fixed in the new bill according to age is as follows: Sixty-two years, $15 a month; sixty-five years, $20 a month; seventy years, $25 a month and seventy-five years $30 a month.

It was declared by the advocates of the bill that 100 veterans are dying every twenty-four hours.

Whisky Crop for 1911.

The 1910-11 Kentucky Whisky crop will amount to between 40,000,000 and 45,000,000 gallons, a big increase over the output of 1909-10, which was 36,000,000 gallons. The crop of 1908-09 was only 27,000,000 gallons, which indicates that the whisky business is booming throughout the state.

West Kentucky Seminary Loses Out Badly at Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 9.—A fair crowd witnessed the basketball game played Friday evening between the West Kentucky Seminary basketball team and the Owensboro high school five. The contest was a slow one, the high school boys taking a walk-over by ending the game 26 to 10. Both teams played only fair ball, but the visitors were in more need of practice than the locals. Following are the two lineups: W. K. S.—M. Taylor and Shultz, forwards; R. and Rogers, guards; J. C. Taylor, center. O. H. S.—Clark and Poley, forwards; Jake and Meisner, guards; Rhoads, center.

ARRESTED AFTER 4 YEARS' FREEDOM

Man Accused of Obstructing Justice Must Stand Trial, Court Holds.

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 10.—Through clever work of Deputy Jailer F. B. Gilbert, formerly of Tazewell, Tenn., but lately of this city, the arrest of John M. Hambling was effected here this afternoon on the charge of murdering Arthur Johnson, dating back four years, and occurring at Clearfield, Tenn. Hambling has been employed as manager of Mrs. Ellen Gibson's dairy farm here more than a year, where he has made a good record and never being suspected of being a fugitive from justice.

Hambling better known as Maynard at Tazewell, his home town, was arrested at the time of killing but broke jail immediately afterward along with twenty other prisoners and made his escape. Maynard acknowledged the killing, but says it was in self-defense.

When asked why he broke jail he said he could not bear to be alone as every other prisoner walked out through the side of the jail by knocking off a plank. He said he was the last one to leave, and also the last one arrested.

His father is worth $50,000 and is said to have written several letters requesting the son to return and surrender. Maynard is thirty years of age and married.

A letter bearing signatures of many prominent citizens here is being prepared to be sent to officers at Tazewell relative to the good conduct of Maynard while living here. A $200 reward was offered for his arrest.

Evidence of Springtime.

Sunday morning there were some evidences that the spring time was no far in the distance the birds were heard chirping their utterances of cheer. All about town many remarked that if these messengers of the warmer season were to be accepted one might begin to get ready to plow and to plant. The temperature went away up until an overcoat was really not in demand in order to enjoy comfort. The favorable change in weather conditions caused many to be out during the afternoon walking, as it was fully warm enough for persons to enjoy such recreation. After all, the little birds were mistaken as there is sure to be some real winter weather encountered before the winter is declared off.

WOODMEN HAVE BIG INIATION

Exercises at Owensboro Last Sunday.

Principal Address is Delivered by Sovereign Root of Omaha, Neb.

Owensboro, Jan. 10.—The meeting held Sunday afternoon and evening by the Woodmen of the World, at which a class of several hundred was given the obligations of the lodge, and an equal number advanced to the Morning and Noon degrees, was one of the largest held in the state of Kentucky and in fact was the largest fraternal meeting ever held outside of Louisville.

The streets of Owensboro were thronged with Woodmen from all the surrounding districts of Western Kentucky. The parade, which formed in front of the Rudd house at 2:30 o'clock and passed through the principal streets of the city, was the beginning of the meeting. Delegates from sixty-four lodges and two bands participated in the parade.

The opening services were held at the Grand theater, where State Manager Brewer, of Louisville, assisted by Mr. J. H. Funk, also of Louisville acted as master of ceremonies. Hon. LaVega Clements, of Owensboro, delivered the welcome address. Mayor Head, of Louisville who was scheduled to have delivered the response, was unavoidably detained in Louisville and Dr. Schley, of Louisville, acted in that capacity.

Master R. T. Guthrie, a very young lad, amused the Woodmen by reciting a few lines of poetry. Following the address of Dr. Schley Miss Abeline Ellis, daughter of State Deputy Thomas L. Ellis delivered a toast to the Woodmen.

The principal address delivered was that of Sovereign Root, of Omaha, Neb., who came to Kentucky to attend the meeting in which he reviewed the work of the lodge generally, showing its great progress.

Before the close of the meeting the Woodmen of the World camps represented agreed to pay fifty cents for a fund with which to purchase a tract of land in Iowa where a monument will be placed to the memory of Sovereign Commander Root, and where a Woodman Widows' home will be erected.

The evening services consisted entirely of the conferring of the degrees. Because of the special train on which the Louisville delegation and band arrived having to return to Louisville early the Protective degree was not conferred, but the candidates were obligated by State Manager J. H. Brewer, of Louisville. The Morning degree was conferred by Consul Commander Alvey Jacks and staff. The candidates were then advanced to the Noon degree by H. A. Birkhead, consul commander; R. E. Watkins, advisor; L. P. Tanner, banker; James Wair venerable father and R. E. Ellis, escort.

Sovereign Commander J. C. Root who narrated out the work of the Noon degree, stated that this work was executed in the best manner that he had ever seen it.

Three Miners Badly Burned.

Madisonville, Ky., Jan. 10.—Thomas Wanless, owner of the Wanless coal mines at Providence, and two miners were in the mines late yesterday afternoon when a loud explosion occurred. The men working above ground saw immense volumes of black smoke issuing from the mines, and as soon as they were able to get in which was in about half an hour, found the owner and the miners terribly burned.

Then men when found were unable to speak. Wanless is in a critical condition but it is thought if he did not inhale too much of the fumes he will live. The other two men will recover.

The mine is a mass of debris. It is a slope colliery and twenty men were employed. When the mine will open is not known. Wanless is a young man. His clothes were burned off and his flesh burned over his entire body.

VITAL STATISTICS LAW IN EFFECT

Births and Deaths Being Recorded in Kentucky.

No Interments of Bodies Allowed
Unless Official Permit is Issued.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 5.—With the beginning of the new year the Bureau of Vital Statistics law went into effect, and for the first time in the history of the State there will be registered under provision of the law the births and deaths of human beings.

The State Registrar, Dr. W. L. Heller and a large office force have been engaged for six weeks in naming local registrars, at an average distance of five miles over the entire State, and to-day over fifteen hundred such appointments are carrying out the twelve thousand packages of mail and express have been sent out from this office within the last ten days.

The first baby perhaps without question, to be born in Kentucky, and who will be the first one registered under the Vital Statistics law, lives in Bowling Green and was born ten minutes after the advent of the new year.

Hundreds of letters have been received by the State Registrar from people over the State which show the popular interest and general approval of the law, and many requests have been filed with the bureau that the births and deaths of the present generation may be registered that a permanent record might be kept of these events.

The legal profession especially is highly pleased that for the first time they will be enabled to secure positive proof of the ages and deaths of individuals and which will facilitate the solving of the many legal difficulties which have to do with the correct record of births and deaths. Besides, the values of these records which relate to decent settlements of estates, the determination of age in holding public office, liability under child labor laws, voting jury and military service, and irresponsibility for crime.

The certificates of death which state whether or not the disease that caused death was infectious, contagious or communicable, will enable the State Board of Health to put their fingers with certainty upon the diseased spot of the State and enforce such regulations that will check the needless deaths of the citizens of the Commonwealth.

Under the law the physicians are required to report to the local registrar within ten days the name of the child and its parents, and the date of its birth. They are required to issue a certificate of death which state the name of the deceased, the age, the cause and the date of death. Undertakers are required to secure a complete certificate of death and present the same to the local registrar, who will issue a burial or removal permit. Interments without this permit become illegal.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 6.—In a raid headed by Mayor Lambert on the pool room of Sam Rogers tonight shortly after 10 o'clock the police arrested J. C. Slack, brother of former City Attorney R. W. Slack, Sam Rogers, H. E. Drury and William Minette for gaming. The four men were placed in the city lockup and will be arraigned before Judge Haslins tomorrow morning.

The raid was one of the most successful ever made in Owensboro and not a man escaped from the gambler and a large number of poker chips was found. The Mayor was assisted by nine policemen, who worked under his directions.

"Maybe they'll think now that I'm going to carry out the orders that I issue," said the Mayor as he walked down the street with his hand on the collar of one of the accused men. The Mayor says he intends to see that all of the gambling places are closed, and closed quick.

BANKER DENIES AGED PAIR WHO CALL HIM SON

Joseph Robin, in New York, Spurns
Jewish Woman Who Claims
Him as Her Boy.

New York, Jan. 5.—"What's the matter with you, anyway? What do you think you're trying to do?" asked Joseph G. Robin, the fallen banker, to-day of the gray-headed couple who say they are his parents. Annoyed all at once, by turns emitting and scowling he absolutely refused to have anything to do with them or even to admit that his parents were in this country. In his denials his sister, Dr. Louise Robinovitch, who has been constantly beside him, took the same firm stand.

No more dramatic confrontation is remembered by the oldest resident of the District Attorney's office. Robin's antecedents have been as cloudy as his sudden rise from poverty to wealth and power was dazzling, and the District Attorney desired more details of what people has sprang from.

In Brooklyn a newspaper reporter found a humble old couple named Robinovitch who thought Robin might be their son. Detectives brought them to the Criminal Courts building to-day questioned them about their family history and then arranged to have them meet Robin.

"No," said he: "I don't want to see them and nobody can make me. They're nothing to me."

So it was necessary to lead him to the District Attorney's office, with assurances that he need only answer a few questions. Once there, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Robinovitch were brought into the room. The woman had the quicker eyes.

"My son! My son!" she cried, half in Yiddish, half in English; "this is my son," and made as if to embrace him. Robin smiled and turned his shoulder.

"Ask him if he is not my son!" she protested to the District Attorney. It was then that Robin started the room with his abrupt question. The woman who says she is his mother, shrank as if she had been struck, and broke out in lamentations. Her husband, whose sight is not of the best, and who understands no English, had been peering anxiously at Robin during this dialogue. An interpreter translated Robin's answer. The old man took a step closer looked him narrowly between the eyes and affirmed positively: "This is my son. I know him."

Again Robin denied that his parents were in this country and at this fresh denial the husband joined with the wife in upraised hands and means of grief that could be heard clearly through the outer corridors.

Cedar Fence Rails Worth More Than Mountain Farms They Inclose.

Somerset, Ky., Jan. 9.—Fence rails being worth more than the farms they inclose has become an acknowledged fact in the Burnside section of Pulaski county, since it has been discovered that the quality of cedar growing there is the best adapted to the manufacture of lead pencils and large quantities of cedar timber have changed hands.

This is probably the only section in Kentucky where this character of cedar is found. High prices are paid for it. In some sections the small farmer with a little mountain farm which is fenced with cedar rails, has discovered that his fences are worth several times the value of the farm and that he can realize a small fortune from the sale of his cedar rails to the buyers for the pencil factories.

This has been instanced in many cases just across the State line, several miles south of here, in Tennessee. One man sold his mountain farm for $1,500 and the purchaser in turn sold the cedar rails from the fences for $5,000. Other instances of a similar kind have been related.

The organization of a corporation for the manufacturing of lead pencils has been completed, and the actual work of construction of the factory at Burnside, this county has been started and is now under way. It will be completed by spring when the new enterprise will be opened.

For some time Burnside has been headquarters for Eastern capitalists for the buying of cedar for lead pencil purposes. This point was selected on account of the character of cedar adapted to this purpose being found along the bluffs of the Cumberland river for many miles above and below Burnside. This output has been shipped East and manufactured into lead pencils. It was seen that a great saving in the way of freight and labor could be had by establishing a manufacturing plant at Burnside. The factory is expected to be turning out its products in the course of a few months.

Three Boys Burned to Death.

Glasgow, Ky., Jan. 7.—A terrible tragedy occurred at the home of Mr. Bobby Bowles of near Wisdom, Monday of last week, when his house was burned, destroying all its contents and worst of all, burning up his three little boys. Mrs. Bowles had gone to the house of a neighbor about a quarter of a mile away and was gone near an hour and a half, leaving her three little boys, aged from one to four and a half years old, locked up in the house. How the fire originated will never be known, but when discovered the roof was falling in and of course all hopes were gone. A few charred remains of the three little fellows all in a heap, were all that was left of the little human beings. It was one of the most shocking accidents which ever happened in this part of the State.

Only One Day—Jan. 30.

We are pleased to announce our fourth Annual Bargain Subscription Day offer. One day each year for the past four years, we have arranged with the Louisville Herald to set aside one day and to make special price, whereby we could offer The Hartford Republican and their paper for less than the regular price of their paper.

Hundreds of our readers take a daily paper as well as ours in order to keep fully abreast of the news of the world,—those who do not should do so.

There is no better daily paper, at any price, to be had in the State of Kentucky, than The Louisville Daily Herald. It is under a new manager and as good as it has always been; it is better to-day than ever.

It is a clean, family sheet, allowing no objectionable advertising of any kind to be published.

It has the finest local news service of any daily paper in the State.

It has Associated Press telegraphic news of the world; it has amusing pictures from its own cartoonist every day, splendid half-tone pictures showing local and world events, and a fearless, independent editorial page, always fair and interesting even to those who differ politically with the editorial opinions.

The regular price of the Daily Herald is $3.00 a year by mail, and the regular price of our paper is $1.00 a year by mail. By a special arrangement we are able to make the wonderful offer of

The Louisville Daily Herald, Regular Price $3.00 a year

CANNON SOLE HEIR IN $2,500,000 WILL

Bombay Lawyers Say a Woman
Unknown to Speaker Left Him Fortune.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—Speaker Cannon has received a letter from King, King & Co., bankers of Bombay, India notifying him that a woman eline of theirs, having been warned by her physicians that she had less than six months to live, had deposited with them her will, for execution upon death, in which "Joseph G. Cannon of Danville, Ill." was made sole heir to an estate valued at approximately $2,500,000.

Uncle Joe did not flinch from the shock nor does he intend to spend any of the money in advance. Indeed, he seems to view the proposition with some skepticism although there seems to be no particular reason why anyone in Bombay should endeavor to perpetrate a long-distance joke upon the ears of Danville.

The legacy, according to the letter of notification, doesn't drop on Uncle Joe out of the clear sky without rhyme or reason. It is explained that many years ago Mr. Cannon, then a hardworking member of the rank and file of House of Representatives, did a favor or, as the letter expresses it a great deed of kindness, for a man, then poor and struggling, from whom he could have expected no return.

That man went to India, worked hard, made fortunate investments, and accumulated a great estate. Upon his death he left his entire estate to King, King & Co.'s client for life with the stipulation that upon her death it was to revert to Mr. Cannon.

The present possessor of the fortune the letter explains, has suffered from an incurable disease for years and was recently told by her physicians that her case was hopeless, and that she could not live longer than six months at the outside. Consequently it is explained she immediately made her will and deposited it with King, King & Co., in Bombay, where she is at present living.

Steps will be taken immediately to ascertain whether or not the communication is genuine and the facts concerning the fortune as stated. In the meantime, Speaker Cannon is nudging his brains trying to think of some one among the various people for whom he has done favors during his many years of public life who might have been able to reciprocate by making him heir to an immense fortune.

Mrs. Sangster's "Don'ts" For Young Wives.

"Don't take other people into your confidence if your John offends you," says Margaret E. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion for January. "Neither your mother, your aunt, your college chum, your dearest girl friend nor the agreeable stranger whom you met the other day should be the recipient of your grievances. If you have them. Your home should be a sanctuary inviolate from profanity, and remember that it is profane when you complain to some one else of John's ill temper, his neglect or his parsimony. I know this is a very difficult don't but the instant a wife permits herself to complain of her husband to people beyond her door, she breaks down a barrier and makes a way for every sort of trouble to enter the field of home."

"Don't be so meek and spiritless that you suffer in silence while you spoil your husband by letting him drift into the role of a domestic despot. Mrs. Henry De la Pasture in her novel, "The Tyrant," shows the eclipse of gaiety and the crucifixion of family love which follow in the wake when a husband is overbearing and a wife over-gentle."

"Whatever you do, don't nag or sulk. A wife who goes about with the air of a martyr who kills her happiness. Don't be inconsolable when your husband tarries late at the office and keeps the dinner waiting. Don't object to his bringing home guests unannounced. If they arrive with him unexpectedly don't apologize for the house or the meal or the children or anything else. Put on extra plates and cups and let them share pot luck."

"Don't have bills if you can help

"I have used Dr. Miles' medicines for over 12 years and find them excellent. I keep Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills in the house all the time and would not think of taking a journey without them, no matter how short a distance I am going. I cannot praise them enough."

L. T. L. Party.

Dear Mr. Editor:
I haven't writ you lately, but I'm still on top, and this snow and freeze makes me feel gooder'n I can tell ye. When the coastin is fine, and you've got your girl on on behind, I t you, I wouldn't chane places with the President. But I want to tell you about the L. T. L. There are 20 of us; we don't move the world tellin' folks what we're doin' but just wait till we're grown. The cigarette boy with his little thin yaller face and his know-nothin head will go "wa back and sit down," and the fellow that takes his swig at the bottle, well I pity him when we L. T. Lers are grown. All the big corporashuns have shut down on the drinker and the cigarette smoker, so boys like us will get the jobs. Did ye hear about our party last week? We have a fine big party every year. Richard Gentry, one of our members, said we could hev it at his house, an so we hed it durin the hollerdays. Each was invited a partner, and we wore our Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes, and as we'd promise our leader we'd be partite and not oo noizy, we put on our Sunday manners too. My! those games, muscle choirs, winks, Quaker meetin', and the cadin', whoopee! I'm livin over it yit, fruit salad, cake candy and popcorn. Mrs. Gentry, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Hackleman did everything to make it pleasant. We all thanked Mrs. Gentry for lettin us hav our party with her, and next yere we're going to have another one, oo goodby.

BAPTISTS ORGANIZING FOR AGGRESSIVE WORK

Supervisor of the Sunday Schools
Chosen by State Board of Missions.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 5.—The establishment of Sunday schools in sections of Kentucky where none now exists, the grading of classes in the schools, and the organization of teacher-training classes will engage the attention of the newly elected supervisor of Sunday Schools, the announcement of whose employment constituted one of the most interesting features of the meeting of the Baptist State Board of Missions held Tuesday afternoon.

Louis Etzinger, of Lakeland, Fla., has been engaged by the Board to undertake this new work, in order that the Baptist Sunday Schools of Kentucky may be brought to the highest state of efficiency and rank second to none in the county. Mr. Etzinger who as a layman, has long been engaged in Sunday School work, is practically thoroughly experienced and comes to Louisville and will shortly take up his residence in the city.

Through a decision reached yesterday the Board of Missions in future will meet but five times a year, instead of once a month as heretofore. Thirty-four members living in different sections of the State, constitute the board, and it is held that the new arrangement will be more satisfactory. As under the previous arrangement the railroad fares of out of town members will be paid. In the interim between the meetings the work of the board will be under the direction of an Executive Committee of seven. The committee is composed as follows: J. D. Coleman, Rev. William Warren Landrum, Rev. Henry Alfred Porter, Rev. J. F. Griffith, of Louisville; Rev. C. M. Thompson, of Hopkinsville; Rev. J. A. Booth of Taylorville, and Rev. J. W. Porter, of Lexington.

The next meeting of the Board will be held at ten o'clock, Tuesday morning, March 7, at the Crescent Hill Baptist Church, the members of the church having extended a special invitation to the Board to meet with them. The Crescent Hill Baptist Church has just been completed, and the State Board of Missions contributed liberally toward the building fund. The Rev. D. W. Powell will deliver the dedicatory sermon on January 15.

The State Board has decided to assist two churches each week during 1911 and appropriators to five or six churches were made yesterday. Reports from the various states showed that for the past two months the Baptist Churches of Kentucky have been second only to those of Georgia in the amount contributed to foreign missions. For the six months preceding that period Kentucky led all other States.

AFRAID OF MOONLIGHT.

The Reason Porto Ricans Carry Umbrellas at Night.

"The majority of Porto Ricans have instilled in them from earliest infancy a superstition dread of the full moon's rays," said a business man who has just returned from that country.

"It is a curious sight to the American visitor to note men and women going along the streets and highways of the island with umbrellas raised over their heads in the lone watches of the night, and the more brilliantly the moon is shining the greater will be the number of people who are thus protecting themselves from her beams. Out in the sequestered rural districts a gay mounted cavalier will be met at midnight, his bridle rein in one hand and an upraised umbrella in the other. It looks weird and also ridiculous, but the natives do it for a peculiar reason. They are possessed of the conviction that Luna's full light striking upon mortals is almost sure to make them mentally unsound—that is to say, lunatics—and that is why they interpose a shield between them and her dazzling brightness.

"To sleep where the moon could shine full upon one is, in the view of a Porto Rican, to tempt fate, and it would be a daring one who could be bold to do it for any consideration."—Baltimore American.

STRENUOUS LIVING.

A Long Day in the Life of an English Lady in 1791.

As for industrious idleness, which is held to blame for the wrecking of our nervous systems. It was not unknown to an earlier generation. Miss. le Kinn assures us that in her youth pleasure loving people would leave Brussels early in the morning, travel all day to Paris to hear the opera and travel all night home. "That," she observes—as well she may—"was considered being fond of the opera."

A paragraph in one of Horace Walpole's letters gives us the record of a day and a night in the life of an English lady—sixteen hours of "strain" which would put New York to the blush. "I heard the Duchess of Gordon's journal of last Monday," he writes to Miss Terry in the spring of 1791. "She first went to hear Haendel's music in the abbey; she then clambered over the benches and went to Haendel's trial in the hall, after dinner to the play, then to Lady Lucan's assembly, after that to luncheon and returned to Mrs. Hobert's faro table; gave a ball herself in the evening of that morning, into which she must have got a good way, and set out for Scotland the next day. Hercules could not have accomplished a quarter of her labors in the same space of time."—Atlantic Monthly.

A Pretty Poor Portrait.

A Chinaman of very high rank had his portrait painted, and when it was finished the painter requested him to inquire of the passersby what they thought of it. The other agreed and asked the first comer:

"Do you think this portrait like?"

"The hat is extremely like," replied the critic.

The subject of the portrait asked a similar question of a second stranger, who answered that the clothes seemed to be exactly reproduced. He was about to interrogate a third when the painter stopped him and said impatiently:

"The resemblance of the hat and clothes is of no importance. Ask this gentleman what he thinks of the face."

On being asked this question the stranger hesitated a very long time, but at last he replied:

"The beard and hair are first rate."

It's Nature.

"I noticed in the store we visited today everybody was crowded around the perfumery counter."

"That's not surprising."

"Why not?"

"Oughtn't perfume naturally to be a center of attraction?"—Baltimore American.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 13.

"Argus," the political writer in the Louisville Herald says: The Governor of Kentucky emulated the example set by President Taft and appointed a Democrat to the best judicial position in his gift. Robert Worth Bingham is to be congratulated for it is rare, indeed that a Republican Governor appoints a Democrat to a high office.

We have made a great many inquiries among Republicans in all walks of life in Ohio County, in the past ten days, and have never yet found one who is not in favor of the nomination of Judge O'Rear for governor. Moreover, we have so far failed to find a member of the party who does not believe that Judge O'Rear will be elected, if nominated, and that he will carry this county by the largest majority which it ever gave to any Republican candidate.

Our editorial in last week's issue, calling attention to the long felt want for manufacturing establishments in Hartford, received lengthy and favorable comment by the Owensboro Inquirer. We reproduce its article in this issue and accept the suggestion which it offers by way of amendment. Our citizens who have employment to give out should encourage the home boy by giving him first chance to earn a living at home. We often feel that our home boys are given a "cold deal" in this regard, when they should be given the glad hand and encouraging word. Besides, something more substantial in the way of employment whenever the opportunity is afforded.

Mr. James P. Thomas, cashier, in the Surveyor of Customs office at Louisville, recently won the first prize in the baseball fan's contest offered by the Louisville Evening Post. Twenty-four cartoons were furnished by Paul A. Plaschke, all of which represented the name of some baseball player, and the correct answer to the names was the goal sought by the contestants. Mr. Thomas only missed two answers and won out over several hundred competitors. The prize is a season ticket to the Louisville baseball park in 1911. Monday's edition of the Post had a page devoted to the contest giving the names of contestants and a splendid likeness of Mr. Thomas the winner, two columns wide in the center. Mr. Thomas is an old Hartford boy and his many friends here will be glad to know of his success in which he displays remarkable knowledge as a baseball fan.

Indications are multiplying very rapidly to show that president Taft is to be one of the most popular presidents this country has ever had, and we predict that before the presidential election rolls around the country will be wild for his re-nomination and re-election. He has steadfastly refused to take part in factional strife and has gone on accomplishing things which have piled up mountain high in comparison to the reforms accomplished for his predecessor. Even the despised tariff law, before another year rolls around will have proven itself tariff law, before another year rolls around will have proven itself worthy of everything which has been said in its behalf since its adoption. It is producing the revenue not only to run the country but to build the Panama canal, without additional indebtedness, and all of the lies which have been told and circulated in the attempt to prove that it was responsible for the high cost of living will be demolished and brought home to those who perpetuated them in the near future.

The Ohio County Fiscal Court is made up of men of sterling character and men who have the best interest of the county at heart. For more than a year they have been wrestling with one of the hardest problems which has ever been brought before any like body of men, the question of how best to work about 1,600 miles of road without needlessly burdening the people with taxes, much of it over steep hills and rocks, and which have been washed almost beyond repair by four years of successive rains. Of course it is but natural that these men should differ somewhat concerning the very best methods to be adopted. Last year they decided to do the work with graders and teams, principally, and the county was divided into districts for that purpose. A great amount of work was accomplished during the season but much of it was ruined by rains and floods and very much of it had to be gone over two or three times. Notwithstanding all these drawbacks the reports from various parts of the county indicate that substantial progress has been made and that many of the roads are in better condition than they have been for many years and with a good season this spring and summer it is believed that all of the roads of the county will be placed in first class condition or in as good condition as it is possible to be made of dirt roads. One serious problem which has confronted the members of the present court since the adoption of the new system is the question of teams to pull the graders. It is a very difficult matter to secure strong, able teams without paying what most people consider an excessive price, and prices which during the season's work would amount to thousands of dollars. At the recent session of the court an order was made directing the committee to purchase a gasoline traction engine which is to be used for the purpose of pulling a grader. This departure is in the nature of an experiment and the further purchase of engines of this class for the county will depend upon the success with which this one can be operated this season. Many persons believe that it will prove a failure while its advocates are strong in the faith and contend that it will be the very thing which is desired to take the place of teams which often fail during the excessive hot weather. Some power other than that of the horse will necessarily have to be resorted to and the question of whether steam or gasoline should be used is one which permits of argument upon both sides. However we trust that within two years the county may be able to let the working of all the roads by contract and then the question of power with which to pull the graders will have to be met by the contractor whoever he may be and the court will be relieved of the problem and at the same time road hands of all ages will be relieved from taxation for road purposes.

WE ACCEPT THE AMENDMENT.

The following editorial appeared in these columns last week, which was reproduced in the Owensboro Inquirer Sunday, with the comment which follows our editorial:

Last week we again call attention to the fact that Hartford must arrange for some manufacturing establishments during the coming year or else all of our efforts and the expenditure of thousands of dollars on streets and sewerage system will find to make any increase in our population. A few evenings ago one of our citizens who has been compelled to see four stalwart sons leave home and go to other towns to find employment made the statement that no less than 75 young men had gone out from Hartford within the past two or three years to seek employment for the reason that we have none to offer. This is a sad state of affairs and should engage the best thought of our citizenship. Will we sit idly by and allow the best blood and brain to leave our town because we can furnish no means of employment? These matters are respectfully directed to the mayor, city council and commercial club for digestion.

To this the Inquirer adds the following:

The Republican might also direct its remarks to the Hartford business people, and to the young men of Hartford too.

The business men and the people generally are largely responsible for many "home boys" having to go away from home to seek employment.

Many "home boys," realizing the usual prejudices against a "home boy," prefer to seek employment in a strange place, where they have to work their way up in business and make for themselves a reputation. They find strangers as exacting as home business men, but usually more ready to give credit, even though no less critical.

When the "home boy" goes away from home to find something to do, he goes with flattering recommendations from business men in his home town who would not give him employment but hired young men from other places. He wants to make good on all the nice things said about him, and he goes to work with a vim and energy that possibly would not characterize his work in the employ of some individual or firm in his home town.

Another reason why many "home boys" go away from home to engage in a profession or vocation is that the boy who really means to do something is ambitious, and in his schemes for achievement he plans bigger things than he sees in his town. In the place of his boyhood everything to him is usually commonplace, and it is the strange city with strange inducements to offer that lures him on to his best efforts.

Republican Convention.

At a meeting of the Republican Committee of the Seventh Senatorial District of Kentucky, held in Beaver Dam, on the 17th of Dec., 1910 at 1 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of determining the time, place and manner of nominating a candidate to be voted for the State Senator, for said district at the regular November election, 1911 Mr. B. List of Ohio County Registrars.

The new Vital Statistics Law became operative with the advent of the New Year. For the first time in the History of Kentucky there will be registered under the form of law birth and death of a human being.

For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act there have been appointed over the entire state Local Registrars whose duty it will be to forward reports of births and deaths to the state office.

The State Board of Health with an increased appropriation will learn from the reports of deaths what spots of the state are infected with communicable and preventable diseases and be able to lower the death rate and effectually control the spread of such afflictions.

It becomes unlawful to bury the dead without a permit which is issued by the Local Registrar when a certificate of death is presented by the undertaker from the doctor. This enables the Board to locate epidemics and, by regulations as to burials, prevent the spread of disease.

The physician is required to report all births within ten days to the Registrar who forwards them to the state office. If no physician is in attendance, it becomes the duty of the parent of the child to report such events.

The following are the names of the Registrar for Ohio county, and the territory assigned each:

J. B. Tappan, voting precincts Nos. 1, 2 and 3, Hartford.
A. B. Wedding, precincts Nos. 4, 5, and 28, Dundee.
Clarence James, precincts Nos. 6, 7, and 10, Cromwell.

The following precincts have not as yet been supplied with Local Registrars but will be in a few days:

Midkiff; Clerk, J. W. Foreman; Escort, Ed. F. Cook. This camp holds its meetings at Sulphur Springs, where they have purchased a hall, and the charter will soon be changed from Sunnysdale to Sulphur Springs. The regular meetings are held the first and third Thursday nights in each month.

Rough River Lodge No. 110 K. of P. had a splendid meeting at his regular session Tuesday night, when the new officers were installed and Rev. W. B. Wright delivered a most interesting and beneficial lecture. The attendance at this meeting was better than for several months, and several members who had not attended in months were present, and the entire evening was entirely an enjoyable one. The following officers were installed by Deputy Grand Chancellor John T. Moore; C. C., J. B. Tappan; V. C., H. E. Brown; Prelate, W. R. Hedrick, Master of Finance, James H. Williams, Master of Exchequer James Lyons; Keeper of Records and Seal, J. Ney Foster; Master at Arms, Jesse Hoover.

New Officers were installed Wednesday night by Ohio Tribe No. 168, Improved Order of Red Men as follows: Sachem, James C. Bennett; Senior Sagamore, Otto C. Martin; Junior Sagamore, Lealle Hoover; Chief of Records, A. E. Pate; Keeper of Wampum, Isaac Foster.

Among the Churches.

METHODIST CHURCH. At the Methodist Church next Sunday there will be regular preaching services by the pastor, Rev. Virgil Elgin. Morning service at 11 a. m. Evening services at 7 p. m.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH. Sunday School every Sunday afternoon at 2:30. On every Friday evening prayer meeting is held, at which time the pastor delivers a lecture

BAPTIST CHURCH. The Ohio County Baptist Mission Board held its regular monthly meeting at Pastor Bruner's home Tuesday morning. The roads being bad, there were only eight members present but there was a lively interest in the meeting and some business of importance transacted. The prayer meeting was conducted Wednesday evening by Mr. John X. Taylor, the subject for study being, "Weighed and not Wanting," Scripture Gen. 22 1-14. The teacher's meeting was held with Dr. Ford Thursday evening. One hour was devoted to the study of the lesson and one half hour to the Teachers' Training Class. Sunday School session next Sunday morning at 9:45 o'clock. Morning worship at 11 o'clock and evening worship at 7 o'clock. Young People's meeting at 6 o'clock.

Special Notice.

Beginning with the next issue this paper will henceforth publish obituaries, resolutions of respect and cards of thanks at the rate of two cents per line. Also notices for church entertainments where money is to be made will be charged for at the same rate. For many years this paper has published many columns of such matter without any charge whatever, but in justice to ourselves we must henceforth make this nominal charge. Our paper space is the only means by which we have to earn money with which to keep it alive and it would be just as fair for the merchants to be required to give away their goods as to expect this from us. We trust our friends and patrons will appreciate our position and govern themselves accordingly. THE REPUBLICAN.

Effort to Repeal "Dry Law."

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 10.—The legislature of Alabama meets in regular biennial session to-day. An effort will be made to repeal the prohibition laws. Governor-elect O'Neal will recommend a return to the policy of local option and the carrying out of the platform on which he was nominated and elected. However, there is a strong prohibition faction in the legislature, and the repeal of the laws is not assured though it is generally believed they will be.

No general assault will be made on the Comer railroad legislation, much of which the courts have declared null and void, and others of which the Comer legislature repealed.

Again The Republican invites everyone to send us news for publication. We intend each week to give all of the news, and we do not want any of our readers, or anyone who is not even a subscriber to feel any delicacy in telling us when they have a visitor, when they are going on a trip, or any news item of any kind. When you see a representative of The Republican tell him that you have some news, and tell him what it is. In a great measure we have to rely each week for our news items on what the people tell us, and we are always more than glad to get any information that would be of interest. If you don't see us, write or telephone.

To Call in Part of State's Debt.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 10.—State Treasurer Farley stated to-day that within the next ten days he would issue a call for about $400,000 worth of interest-bearing warrants outstanding against the State.

Capt. Farley is worried because holders of about 285 interest-bearing warrants which have been called in have not been presented by the owners. The law providing for interest-bearing warrants specifically states that after a call has been issued for the payment of the warrants the interest ceases.

The owners seem to be under the impression that the warrants are still bearing interest. The 285 warrants represent about $60,000 which will be paid to the owners of the warrants as soon as they are presented for payment.

Checks amounting to $150,000 are being mailed out by the Treasurer for salaries of city school teachers. During the last week over $50.00 has been paid the city and rural teachers.

Ever notice that the most reputable dealers say the least about guarantees and insurance? They have learned long ago that it does not pay. PALESTINE.

Many Ways in Which It Strikingly Resembles California.

Palestine is more like the state of California than any other in the Union in everything except size. It lies between longitude 34 degrees 30 minutes and 36 degrees 30 minutes east and between latitude 30 degrees 30 minutes and 33 degrees 45 minutes north. It is practically a California reduced to about one-twentieth in size, but markedly similar in general topography, climate, vegetation and agricultural and economic possibilities.

Like California, Palestine is longest from north to south. Like California, too, it has both very high mountains, having an elevation of 9,000 to 10,000 feet, and very deep depressions. The Dead sea, 1,200 feet below sea level, is the greatest depression known, and, like the Death valley of California, it is situated in the southern extremity of the country.

In Palestine, just as in California, we have a dry, warm season and a humid and more temperate one. The rainy season extends from October to May and the dry season from May to October.

Palestine is even more favored than California with regard to the winter temperature. Although the thermometer rises as high in summer in Palestine as in California, with extremes of 110 degrees to 115 degrees F., though not so often, it very rarely drops in the winter to the freezing point. Snow is rare, even on the plateaus, and our farmers are practically safe from any damage by frost over nearly the entire extent of the country.—From Aaron Aaronsohn's "Agricultural and Botanical Explorations in Palestine."

KEPT HER BUSY.

The Way She Tried to Discover the Telephone Numbers.

"I don't believe that the public schools teach their graduates to use their minds," remarked a well known citizen of Philadelphia the other day. "Here's a story just to illustrate what I mean:

"I got a secretary last summer who had just been graduated with high honors from the Commercial high school. She had been picked out for me as the best girl in her class, and I found her excellent in all that required methodical, parrot-like work.

"One day I jotted down some telephone numbers that I wanted to remember and, having a poor memory, forgot in the course of the morning whose the numbers were or what the business was upon which I wanted to phone.

"So I called Miss Blank just as I was going out and said, 'Before you get your luncheon I wish you'd find out for me whose those telephone numbers are.'

"Two hours later I came back, and Miss Blank was sitting at her desk, weary and perseveringly studying the telephone book.

"I asked her if she had got some letters written that I had left, if she had lunched, if she had done several little things. She said no and then explained:

"'You see, it takes me a long time to read through the book till I come to the numbers you want,' she said. 'I haven't had time to do anything else.'"

Marbles.

Marbles got their name from the fact that originally little bits of marble were rolled down the hills and rounded and pounded by other stones until they became toys for the children to play with. It is said that the Dutch exported them to England. Whether they did or not makes little difference to the boys and girls of today. No matter who introduced the world to marbles as toys, they are with us and always will be. Some of you get them from other children, some of you trade postage stamps for them, but some persons originally bought them from the little store around the corner, whose owner got them from the greatest toyshop in the world—Germany. In the beginning marbles were called "bowls," and men and women played with them as well as children.—Dundee Advertiser.

A Tree Cut Down by Rifle Bullets.

In the sanguinary annals of the American war there was no more sanguinary episode than the fight in 1864 of "The Bloody Angle at Spottsylvania." Every bush and every sapling that constituted the thicket there," says Mr. G. C. Eggleston in his "History of the Confederate War," "was cut away by a stream of bullets as grass is before a mower's scythe. Even an oak tree nearly two feet thick was worn in two near its base by the continual and incessant stroke of leaden balls until it fell, crushing some of the Confederates who were fighting beneath its branches."

A Neat Compliment.

That was a neat compliment paid by a French ambassador in London to a peeress who had been talking to him for an hour.

The lady said, "You must think I am very fond of the sound of my own voice."

The Frenchman replied, "I knew you liked music."

CUSTER'S LAST FIGHT.

The Famous Battle of the Little Big Horn River.

General George A. Custer was one of the most notable cavalry officers developed during the war of the rebellion. It was his fortune to be in the thick of the conflict within a few days after leaving the training school at West Point, and from that time until the day of his death his life was filled with strenuous work and stirring adventure, in which he was frequently exposed to deadly peril.

The closing chapter of his life, which came with what is known in history as "Custer's last fight," which occurred on June 26, 1876, was a tragedy, but he died like a soldier.

For a number of years after the civil war Custer had been engaged in Indian fighting on the frontier of the United States. Many of these engagements were among the most thrilling in the history of Indian warfare in this country.

The famous expedition which led up to the famous battle of the Little Big Horn river was started on May 17, 1876, when General Terry, his officers, of whom General Custer was one, and his troops left Fort Lincoln, Dakota. Every one realized that the campaign was likely to be a decisive one. It was planned to strike the Indians a serious blow—one from which they could not recover.

The advance was begun under favorable conditions, and the Little Big Horn mountains were reached on June 25 and the Indian village located. A slight accident gave the red men warning. Nobody knows exactly how the battle of Little Big Horn was fought. The statements made afterward by the Indians were contradictory, but they all agreed that Custer's appearance was a great surprise. The best evidence shows that the Indians closed in on both right and left and placed Custer at once on the defensive. Closer and closer the coil tightened around that plucky band. One after the other of the troopers fell, the horses were stampeded, the ammunition ran low, no messenger had been able to break through the lines, and the mortality among the officers was heavy.

Then Custer had his troops fire two volleys in succession, the usual cry for help. It was heard in Reno's camp. Its significance was understood, but no help came. Soon came the final act of the tragedy. The Indians closed in from all sides, led by the cruel chiefs Crow King, Gall, Crazy Horse and Rain-in-the-Face. It was a hand to hand fight. It was 150 against 1,000. Grouped about Custer were twenty or thirty desperate men. They fought with their leader, they fought for their leader, until the last man lay dead.

Not an American officer or soldier lived to tell the tale of "Custer's last fight." Never in the history of the world was the bravery, devotion to duty and perfect discipline of troops better illustrated. Almost without exception the bodies of the men were found just where they had fought. Each company was in the place assigned, troopers in line and their officers in position. They fought a losing battle, but they fought without flinching. They were killed, but not disgraced.—Detroit Free Press.

THE CAMERA OBSCURA.

From It Was Evolved Our Modern Photographic Apparatus.

The camera was invented by an Italian named Baptista Porta, though it was not at first used for photographing. It was in reality merely a dark room, into which the light was admitted through a little round hole in one side. The rays of light coming from objects outside of this room entered it through this aperture and made a picture on the other side of the room glowing in all the beauty and color of nature itself, but rather indistinct and upside down.

This dark room was contrived by Porta about the middle of the sixteenth century. He improved it later by placing a glass lens in the aperture and outside a mirror which reflected the rays of light and reflected them through the lens so that the image upon the opposite wall within was made much brighter, more distinct and in a natural or erect position. This was really the first camera obscura, an invention which is enjoyed to the present day.

Now our modern photographic camera is merely a small camera obscura in its simplest form, carrying a lens at one end and a ground glass screen at the other. It is, however, often much more complicated in its construction.

The soothing spray of Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, used in an atomizer, is an unspeakable relief to sufferers from Catarrh. Some of them describe it as a Godsend, and no wonder. Owensboro Woman Alleges That Husband Tried to Pitch her out of Window.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 7.—Mrs. Fannie Tuttle has filed suit for an absolute divorce from her husband W. R. Tuttle on the grounds that her husband has not only mistreated her, but has threatened to throw her out of a second story window and by physical force has excluded her from her property, and that he now has possession of her property and is enjoying the benefits of it.

The plaintiff also alleges that her husband is insolvent and is not making either her or himself a decent living. He has been living off her money, she claims.

Because of the prominence of the parties concerned the suit is attracting considerable attention in this section of the State. Tuttle is reputed to be one of the wealthiest farmers of Daviess County.

The title of the Daviess Circuit Court is being taken up in the hearing of evidence against Samuel Thixton, a fifteen-year-old boy, charged with housebreaking. Thixton was indicted with Robert Keith and Jesse Crowe all under eighteen years of age. The boys are accused of having broken into the dry goods store of Frank C. Brown & Co. Thixton served one term in the house of reform for housebreaking.

Wilbur Edwards colored, was found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of two to five years.

YOUR HOME PAPER

One of the brightest and most interesting papers read at the midwinter meeting of the Kentucky Press Association was prepared and read by Mrs. Ella Hutchinson Ellwanger, one of the best-known literary women in Kentucky. Mrs. Ellwanger's subject was "Your Home Paper," and she handled it in a manner that won the highest commendation from all who heard it. Witty, breezy and chock full of delightful bits of sentiment the paper made a decided "hit" and Mrs. Ellwanger was warmly congratulated.

It may have been the season of the year—the spirit of Christmas, that caused me to stand in some six inches of snow and slush one twilight not long since, and watch the passersby get "Their Home Paper" from the newsvender at the corner of Fourth avenue and Walnut street.

As I still stood there he looked at sick people look for their sheet, a well-dressed well-groomed specimen of manhood, passed, looked with great pretended indifference at the rows of papers on the racks, and then started off across the street without making a purchase.

"Hay there, mister," shouted out the newsman hurriedly counting out another change "hey, there can't you find year paper—wots the name?"

For the fraction of a second the man hesitated and then came back with a tolerant smile on his lips at the man's insistence. His paper was, however too inconsequential to find a place on the rack and he purchased one published near his home town.

As I still stood there he looked at me—a bit kindly—and as he pocketed his change he said:

"Can't you find yours, either?"

A tumultuous rush of something came over me and a few foolish tears splashed on my coat. I merely nodded my head too full for speech—for was I not then on my way home from the postoffice with "My Home Paper" tucked safely under my arm?

I learned afterward, the man searching for his paper was one of the most successful business men in the city of Louisville. Christmas memories had taken him back to the little town where he was reared, and he wanted to hear from them this Yuletide.

"It's the Christmas microbes," he laughed gently as he raised his hat in farewell.

To-day how many of you men, I wonder, rummage beneath the pile of literature that comes each day to your desk to seek out the little daily that it is scarcely big enough to stay in its wrapper, and then, with a quiet smile go to your overcoat and put it down deep in one of its capacious pockets.

Johnny, the office boy, you are certain, thinks that you are getting a disreputable bulletin of some sort. Again, you are not sure but what the little rascal knows what it is, where it is published and why you hide it. That paper is frequently found unwrapped and Johnny's back on these occasions is eloquent with subdued hilarity.

As a matter of your home paper? Mercy! Heaven defend us from such a charge! It is not shame—but rather a sense of fear that someone who does not know and loves everybody in the "dull old town" will read it, and laugh—as Johnny is doing.

Nothing seems to provoke so much merriment from some folks as reading the very personal paragraphs addressed to country newspapers.

It may be only a four-page semi-weekly but you, successful business man, golf enthusiast, club man and what not, reading every word of it, including the birth and death notices and advertisements.

You have made your fortune now and are accounted among the representative men of the community in which you live, and if we are to believe all that is said and written of you, are also one of the most eligible and envied bachelors in the city. But, when you read of the marriage of "the pretty and accomplished" Miss Polly Smith, of Housysuckle, Ky., to one Silas Brown, of the same village, the owner of the one large general merchandise store and postmaster to boot you lay the paper down on your knees and wipe your glasses (the print gets very trying sometimes in a small paper) and your mind flies back to the time, when to win one smile from Polly's saucy mouth was the chief and end aim of your existence.

O, you'd make your fortune first in the city and go back and lay it with your heart at Polly's feet—if she would consider your unworthy self as a bonus. But Time—or was it another woman who stole your love? By degrees the blow of separation healed and then, oh, woe, friends claim your time and distance are greater in a large place and one gets weaned away.

But "old Sil"—well who would have thought it? How he used to envy you your "stand in" with Polly—why it must be—let's see—nearly eight—no, it's ten years ago—could it be, you wonder that she might have waited a bit for you? The thought makes the blood rush to your face. Of course not—she didn't give you any more thought than you deserved—there goes those everlasting glasses again. You make a sneaking mental note to consult your oculist. It's very chilly in the room and lone some.

The friendship of men, you think, are very agreeable but they are also very insecure. Said Stephenson: "You know all the time that one friend will marry and put you to the door a second accept a situation in China and become no more to you than a name, a reminiscence, and an occasional crossed letter, very laborious to read, a third will take up some religious croquet and treat you to sour looks thenceforward. So in one way or another, life forces men apart and breaks up the goodly fellowships for ever. The very flexibility and ease which make men's friendship agreeable while they endure, make them easier to destroy and forget."

With the sigh just from your lips you pick up the paper and smile (while your eyes are still moist) at the very personal paragraphs before you. One intimates, in anything but subtle fashion, that "the new horse and buggy of one Pete Wigginton is seen hitched regularly at the gate of the "Widow Green" and insinuates in bold black type, "that Miss Orangeline Dangle's" had better watch out or the "widely" would "cut her out of her beau."

Another goes in flowery and redundant English an account of the wedding of one who has bloomed into womanhood since you left. She is described to use the little correspondent's own words, "like an angel floating down the aisle on a white cloud and the tears glistening in her beautiful eyes."

Then follows the interesting announcement that Mr. Hiram Snelling has sold to Henry Green a five-hundred-pound calf—price private.

Your paper is again forgotten and your thoughts are with Hiram and the days when you two used to play hooky together and spend the long summer days in the famous old swimming hole. "Poor old Hiram" you breathe, but is it not rather, "poor old business man." Which is the poorer?

Swift visitors of rabbit hunts over the crisp icy snow, that seemed to redeem the whole wide world from sin that mornning. Snow that weighed to earth the young cedars and ridged deep in pearl every twig on the elm tree.

Ah, that first rabbit hunt with the astute Hiram for companion. That morning you learned for the first time that br'er rabbit held one foot in reserve for close quarters. Of fishing in the long hot summer days with Hiram who could catch more fish with a pole and bent pin than you with your jointed rod and famous megaland mullam reel. Or, with the fun-loving Hiram whittling out weather vanes from the saplings that grew in the thicket, with your big barlow knife. What would you not have given, you think for a dozen or so empty cigar boxes that any street arab can have now for the asking. Ah, those poor blissful days on the farm—how very rich they are in homely joys.

Money, you reflect can't buy everything. There were no admission tickets to the sunsets, viewed from some high hill-top; nothing to pay to go wild grape hunting and mulling; no coin of the realm needed to see the sun turn the dew drops on the spider's web into millions of diamonds; no money needed to lie on the grass in the woods with your hands under your head and gaze at the bits of blue sky through the leafage and dream the "long thoughts of youth."

But you cut it all and Hiram—well Hiram never really grew up. He will always stay a boy and be content to hunt and fish and dream his life away. Who shall say which has chosen the more wisely.

In the death column there are many names that are new to you. The new ones creep in now with alarming frequency. But there is one name not strange to your eyes. The old minister who christened you, welcomed you into his flock when you in the death of a father, mother and a baby sister, has himself crossed over to the Paradise Side of the River of Death.

Prosperity success and pleasure may be coarse in grain and fiber, but surely sorrow is the tenderest thing God has made. Therefore, you see no fulsome in the long and flowery eulogy written by the little country correspondent and ending with a verse of pronounced originality. Neither do you smile—as Johnny, for instance would have done, to see the same amount of space given over to the death of "old Dobbin," the doctor's gray mare, who for twenty years patiently allowed all the children in the village to stick on his back to the end of his tail—where you smile to remember, the little girl swung.

There is a pity in forgotten things. Gone, that blessed old man, and he would never know of the many intentions on your part to send him a box of such books that would make his tender heart beat fast.

"They are poor That have lost nothing; they are poor or far Who, losing have forgotten; they most poor Of all, who lose and wish they might forget."

"Life is one; and in its warp and woof There runs a thread of gold that glitters fair And sometimes in the pattern shows most sweet. Where there are sombre colors. It is true.

That we have wept. But, oh, this thread of gold, We would not have it tarnish! Let us turn Oft and look back upon the wondrous web. And when it shines sometimes we shall know.

That memory is possession."

—Ingelow.

In unconscious abandon you fling your arms across the table and are not at all ashamed of the tears that near its surface. Your ugly bull pup gets up from his place at your feet in alarm at this unusual performance on your part and sticks his cold nose into your lap to comfort you, and you thus admonish his dogship.

"A man's a fool to forget his old home and friends for a few penny dollars—what good can they do since they cannot buy you the few things you really want. And you want, oh, so much to wall around your boyhood haunts; to skip rocks across the pond to fish from its sunny banks; to stand again on the old bridge and watch the lights from the hill and the boat's melt in the water in a moving molten mass. You want to stand there on the bridge again with the back water rushing under you and look towards the hill-top, where your beloved dreamless sleepers are covered with a warm soft blanket of snow this Christmas tide; to wonder amiably down the street and bow and smile to everyone you see—from the Governor down to the new grocery boy, who brought your potatoes home last evening; to comfort the street car conductor with a warm handshake, as he tells you, with working face, that the little blay of his you used to admire is dead; to swing your legs along with those of the other politicians from some dry goods box on Main street and discuss Taft and Teddy; to hang around the one book store in the place, with half the other inhabitants, and wait for the moving picture show to begin, and end all by patronizing the pop-corn man on the corner and a stroll home with your sweetheart's hand comfortably tucked in your arm. No words are spoken by you two—you both understand the sweet silences of love and realize that some sweet day you will always be together—please God. And so, you bid her good-night and walk home, slowly your throat aching with the beauty of the tall gaunt trees the frosty snow on leaf and hedge, and the blue of the sky and the brilliance of the stars—never, you think never did you see so many stars in the firmament! The silence is a benediction and you know now that love is the One Beautiful Thing in all the world.

And that's a thing, you add, pulling your dogs ears to let him know you are yourself again, "that's a thing that money cannot buy."

You shake your fist at yourself in the glass and say: You'll cut out that White Mountain trip next summer, old boy, and get back home and get acquainted with all those new names in your home paper and make up in a way, for all those years of neglect. Only the fools strut in the procession we call life—the wise laugh and love as they walk in the pageant and I have been such an old fool, you say.

I want to go home, To the dull old town, With the shaded streets, And the open square, And the hills And the flats And the house I love. I want to be there Where the joy was once.

If I can't go back to the happy days, Yet, I can live where their shadows lie.

Under the trees and over the grass— I want to go home.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA "Bad Jake" Noble Captured.

Catlettsburg, Ky., Jan. 5.—News received here to-day from Williamson, W. Va., states that the suspect arrested there as "Bad Jake" Noble, the Breathitt county outlaw who killed Jailer Wesley Turner, of Breathitt county, on the streets of Jackson on the night of November 8 last, was disguised as a negro and was going under the alias of Bill Salles.

The suspect was captured at Matamoras, W. Va., by Constable John B. Maynard and Deputy Floyd Hall, who had him under surveillance several days as the much-wanted Breathitt county desperado. Letters found on the prisoner's person, it is said, were good evidence that he was wanted for the killing of Jailer Turner.

The man is in jail at Williamson awaiting the arrival of Sheriff Hudson, of Breathitt county, who has been communicated with and is now on the way to Williamson. There is a large reward offered for the arrest of Noble.

Monster Hog Killed.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 7.—Mr. Charles Goodrum who lives near the city on the Dishman Mill pike holds the record for having killed the biggest hog ever raised in Warren county. During the present cold snap he butchered a porker that weighed 375 pounds. The hog was of a fine quality, and Mr. Goodrum secured a top price for it.

Facts for Weak Women

Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day by

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

It Makes Weak Women Strong. Sick Women Well.

It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restorative tonic for the whole system. It cures female complaint right in the privacy of home. It makes unnecessary the disagreeable questioning, examinations and local treatment so universally insisted upon by doctors, and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

We shall not particularize here as to the symptoms of those peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser—1008 pages, newly revised and up-to-date Edition, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only; or, in cloth binding for 31 stamps.
